Welcome to sweet Auburn, our loveliest village. We promise it won’t take long to feel like home sweet home!
Welcome to Auburn University and East-central Alabama, an area filled with scenic natural beauty and a wealth of possibility. Whether you are a student arriving to earn a degree, a parent, a visitor for a short time, or someone beginning a new career, you’ll find the area has much to offer in education, recreation, nature, history, culture, and more.

The cities of Auburn and Opelika have frequently been cited as top places to start a business or enjoy recreational activities, largely due to their small-town atmosphere and the university.

Auburn University and Lee County made national news in 2016 when the Wall Street Journal focused on the economic resilience of college towns that offset fading industries with new high-tech opportunities. The article gave accolades to the many partnerships created by the university, the community, and industry officials working together for the benefit of all. The Journal highlighted the partnership with GE Aviation as an excellent success story. GE brought high-volume additive manufacturing in 2014 to the city of Auburn for fabricating jet engine fuel nozzles.

Companies benefit from Auburn University’s world-class faculty and research, a talented local workforce, and great communities dedicated to working together for its citizens.

You will find your time here in “the loveliest village of the Plain” most rewarding, and you’ll also discover why some 300,000 alumni worldwide are proud to be part of the Auburn Family.

With a beautiful campus spanning more than 1,800 acres, Auburn University is one of the largest universities in the South, remaining in the educational forefront with its traditional blend of arts and applied science, and changing with the needs of today while living with a respect for the traditions and spirit that are Auburn.
Auburn is one of the few universities to carry the torch as a land-, sea- and space-grant university. The fall 2016 semester enrollment was 28,290. Students can choose from more than 140 degree options in 13 colleges and schools at the undergraduate, graduate, and professional levels.

More than its impressive numbers, though, is the strong sense of connection felt by the hundreds of thousands of alumni worldwide, the students, faculty, staff, and Auburn community itself, collectively referred to as the Auburn Family.

Auburn has awarded some 300,000 degrees in agriculture, architecture, business, education, engineering, forestry, human sciences, liberal arts, nursing, pharmacy, sciences and mathematics, and veterinary medicine. The university awards doctoral degrees through its Graduate School.

More important to most students when considering their university home are the results from the National Survey of Student Engagement, which reveals that Auburn outperforms its peers in helping students thrive academically and socially by providing a supportive campus environment. Based on a survey of recent graduates, 93 percent indicate that they would choose Auburn again and 98 percent feel that their Auburn education has enhanced their opportunity for future advancement.

Auburn had an overall $5.1 billion economic impact on the state economy in 2015 and created 23,600 jobs, in addition to direct employment, according to a recent self-study.

The community enjoys visiting the university’s Draughon Library, the state’s largest with more than 3.6 million volumes; the Telfair Peet Theatre; the state’s only university art museum - the Jule Collins Smith Museum of Fine Art; musical performances; strolling around campus or in the Davis Arboretum; touring historic buildings; attending athletic events; and, of course, tailgating with a sea of orange- and blue-clad fans during fall football Saturdays.

For the more than 28,000 students who come here from all 50 states and some 100 foreign countries, Auburn fosters one of the richest academic experiences possible. Come visit and hear your first, welcoming “War Eagle!” family greeting, and make yourself at home. For more information, visit www.auburn.edu.

THE AUBURN MISSION: OUTREACH

Auburn’s Outreach division connects the university to the community, providing instructional programs and expert assistance services directly to the public. Auburn holds the Carnegie Foundation’s prestigious “engaged institution” classification for the quality and scope of its outreach programs.

Annually, Auburn outreach centers offer more than 800 non-credit continuing education and professional certificate programs in a variety of executive, technical, and general interest subjects. Offices of the Alabama Cooperative Extension System, located in all 67 counties, provide a range of educational services statewide.

University Outreach draws some 5,000 youth each summer to Auburn for academic and athletic residential camps.

The university’s award-winning chapter of The Campus Kitchens Project engages students in preparing and delivering more than 4,900 meals annually to people in need in east Alabama.

Auburn’s faculty engagement generated more than $150 million in extramural funding for outreach initiatives over the last decade.

The Osher Lifelong Learning Institute at Auburn University (OLLI at Auburn) is a membership program that offers academic courses, exercise classes, social activities, and leadership opportunities for adults ages 50 years or older at program sites at Auburn University, Auburn Montgomery campus, and the Chambers County Library in Valley, AL. OLLI at Auburn is a program of the Office of the Vice President for University Outreach. Visit www.olliauburn.org for more information.

THE AUBURN MISSION: RESEARCH

Auburn’s visionary research is aligned with long-term national priorities in: additive manufacturing; cyber; energy and the environment; Gulf of Mexico research and restoration; health sciences (including food systems); transportation; and improvements in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics education.

The first two buildings in the university’s new Health Sciences Sector, the Harrison School of Pharmacy’s pharmaceutical research building and a new home for the School of Nursing, are scheduled to open in 2017. Both facilities are located near the Edward Via College of Osteopathic Medicine (VCOM) to bolster interdisciplinary collaborations among VCOM medical students and Auburn nursing and pharmacy students.

The newly created McCrory Institute carries out state-of-the-art, transformative, peer-reviewed research, advanced development and technology transition in critical infrastructure protection, cyber systems, security, with a specific focus on the energy sector as well as advancing responsible natural resource development and conservation.

Auburn University and NASA have signed a second agreement to advance key research areas. For example, Auburn received the nation’s first FAA approval to operate a new Unmanned Aircraft Systems Flight School as part of its Aviation Center. Researchers are now using this aircraft systems to monitor crop health over many acres of land.

The university’s new academic buildings will include engaged and active learning classrooms designed to transform and enhance teaching and learning with collaborative, flexible, technology-based learning spaces. Opening in fall 2017, Auburn’s new Mell Classroom Building will include a 69,000-square-foot addition to the existing Ralph Brown Draughon Library, offering 40 new and renovated group study rooms, 29 active learning classrooms, two lecture halls, and new food venues.

In 2015, Auburn received the nation’s first FAA approval to operate a new Unmanned Aircraft Systems Flight School as part of its Aviation Center. Researchers are now using this aircraft systems to monitor crop health over many acres of land.

In 2015, the University College was established to serve students enrolled in the Interdisciplinary University Studies Program and other undergraduate cross-college programs; it is also home to the Exploratory Advising Center that provides assistance to first-time freshmen who have not selected a specific major.

Together, researchers from every Auburn college and school drive discovery to the marketplace, collaborating with industry and government and creating new economic development opportunities. With expertise aligned to meet societal needs, Auburn Research serves as a catalyst for growth and prosperity in Alabama and throughout the region.

THE AUBURN MISSION: INSTRUCTION/ACADEMICS

Auburn is one of the few universities to carry the torch as a land-, sea-, and space-grant university. The fall 2016 semester enrollment was 28,290. Students can choose from more than 140 degree options in 13 colleges and schools at the undergraduate, graduate, and professional levels.

US News & World Report ranked Auburn among the top 50 public universities nationwide for 24 consecutive years, while Money and Forbes named Auburn the top university in the state of Alabama. The Princeton Review’s “Best 381 Colleges: 2017 Edition” ranked Auburn No. 4 for “Colleges with the Happiest Students.”

In 2015, Auburn received the nation’s first FAA approval to operate a new Unmanned Aircraft Systems Flight School as part of its Aviation Center. Researchers are now using this aircraft systems to monitor crop health over many acres of land.

In 2015, the University College was established to serve students enrolled in the Interdisciplinary University Studies Program and other undergraduate cross-college programs; it is also home to the Exploratory Advising Center that provides assistance to first-time freshmen who have not selected a specific major.

The university’s first strategic hiring initiative was launched in fall 2014 to support the recruitment of competitive faculty in an effort to strategically advance key research areas.

TOOMER’S CORNER is where you’ll find the celebration after a big win at Auburn. The intersection of College Street and Magnolia Avenue is where Auburn’s campus and the city of Auburn meet. It’s also home to the famed Toomer’s Drugs, where the tradition of rolling the corner is said to have begun. The local drug store had the only telegraph in the city, so when employees received news of an Auburn victory at an away game, they would throw the ticker tape onto the powerlines of the intersection. There is no clear consensus on when the tradition changed to throwing toilet paper into the trees.

The original Auburn Oaks were poisoned in early 2011. The university attempted to save the trees, but had to remove them once it was determined they would not survive. Two new trees were transplanted in 2015.

University officials suspended rolling of the Magnolia Avenue tree due to severe damage by fire during the 2016 football season. Two new live oaks were planted on February 18, 2017. The rolling tradition will not return to the corner until it’s deemed the new trees can tolerate it.

Pep rallies have returned to Toomer’s Corner during football season thanks to the cooperation of the Student Government Association and the city of Auburn. Thousands of students, faculty, and fans fill the streets at Toomer’s Corner to cheer their Auburn Tigers! Encouraging spirit within the Auburn community and campus, these pep rallies have boosted enthusiasm and Auburn pride in the heart of each member of our great Auburn Family.

The EAGLE FLIGHT is one of the best gameday traditions in all of college football. Fifteen minutes before kickoff of an Auburn home football game, the eagle takes flight inside Jordan-Hare Stadium. Even visiting fans are captivated as the eagle soars around to the thundering “Waaarr Eagle” of fans. The role of the eagles is to promote wildlife conservation as a part of the education initiatives of the US Fish & Wildlife Service and the College of Veterinary Medicine’s Southeastern Raptor Center. The USFWS permits the raptor center to house eagles and use them on hundreds of educational presentations each year, including Auburn’s home football games.

WAR EAGLE is both a salutation and a battle cry. It is not a mascot or nickname. “War Eagle” has become a way for the Auburn Family to greet and identify with each other all over the world. It can be heard before kickoff when Auburn fans join together for a loud “War Eagle!” as the eagle flies inside Jordan-Hare Stadium.
AUBIE is the mascot of the Auburn Tigers. He is a spirit leader and goodwill ambassador for the university. With nine wins, he has won more UCA National Champion mascot titles than any other mascot. Aubie was named the 2014 Capital One Mascot of the Year and was among the first three college mascots inducted to the Mascot Hall of Fame in 2006.

TIGER WALK is a tradition that began in the early 1960s. Two hours before kickoff of every home football game, thousands of Auburn fans line Donahue Drive to cheer on the team as they walk to Jordan-Hare Stadium. Tiger Walk has become such a major part of gameday activities it is listed on the players’ gameday itinerary. Fans often carry on the tradition at away games and bowl games.
Auburn was officially founded in the winter of 1836 when Judge John Harper set out with his family and other settlers to build a town intended to serve as the religious and educational center of the area. In 1839, the Alabama Legislature approved incorporating Auburn. After two years of growth and prosperity, Auburn began vying for a Methodist male college. On February 1, 1856, the Legislature incorporated the East Alabama Male College. In 1859, the college opened its doors as a private liberal arts institution affiliated with the Methodist Church. The college was forced to close its doors in 1861 when most students joined the Confederate Army, but reopened as a hospital from 1864-1866.

In 1866, East Alabama Male College opened once again, but struggled financially. In 1868, the Legislature decided to create a public land-grant college to offer specific training to help Alabama rebuild its war-torn state. Though the trustees would have preferred not to give up their college, the state had land-grant money and no campus and East Alabama Male College had a campus, but no money. On February 26, 1872, Lee County Legislator Sheldon Toomer wrote the bill making Auburn the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Alabama.

Bill Beckwith began working for Auburn as a student intern in 1949. In 1957, Beckwith was named ticket manager, a post he kept until his retirement in 1992. He was inducted into the Tiger Trail of Auburn in 2010.

Tiger Trail The sidewalks of downtown Auburn are a walk through Auburn history! Each granite plaque honors one of Auburn’s greatest athletes, coaches or administrators. One hundred and twenty-six of Auburn’s athletic elite are now part of the Tiger Trail. For a complete list of inductees, bios and plaque locations, visit www.auburnalabama.org/tigertrail.

Why do we know Auburn so well?

It’s because we’ve grown up together.

Since 1907, AuburnBank has been part of this community. As Auburn has emerged as a city recognized for its quality of life, we have been here to see it and contribute to it. As the area’s only locally chartered bank, we are uniquely equipped to understand our community and the specific financial needs of our neighbors, who are also our customers. Our services include mortgage loans, personal loans, commercial loans, free personal internet banking, checking and savings accounts, as well as convenient branch locations, ATMs, and drive-thru services.

We hope you enjoy this community as much as we do. And remember, a good way to get to know Auburn is to get to know us. Drop in for a visit anytime.
Auburn Parks and Recreation offers fitness programs, special interest classes, athletic facilities, parks, walking trails, league sports, camps and special events for every age, for every interest and for every season! The options for indoor and outdoor recreation right here at home are nearly limitless. They say that the family who plays together stays together.
They say that we don’t stop playing because we grow old, but that we grow old because we stop playing.

Deep meaning, they say, lies often in childish play.
That play keeps us vital and alive and gives us an irreplaceable enthusiasm for life.

They say that in every real man is hidden a child who wants to play.
That you can discover more about a person in an hour of play than in a year of conversation. But what do they know?

Find out for yourself.

One of the many benefits of life in a college town is an exciting year-round lineup of athletic events for every fan and family to enjoy.

A member of the Southeastern Conference, Auburn has 21 NCAA Division I-A athletic teams—nine men’s and 12 women’s. The university’s teams have claimed 22 national titles, including football, men’s and women’s swimming and diving, equestrian, and women’s track and field. Auburn’s athletic teams are known as the Tigers, and the official colors are orange and navy blue. Auburn’s mascot is the beloved Aubie the Tiger.

Building on a legacy of athletic prowess, the Auburn Tigers have achieved seven perfect football seasons and won 12 conference championship titles. Three Heisman Trophy winners wore orange and navy on the field: quarterback Pat Sullivan in 1971, running back Bo Jackson in 1985, and quarterback Cam Newton in 2010.

The Donald E. Davis Arboretum is dedicated to the display of native woody plants of the southeastern United States. The 14-acre natural setting is supported by the College of Sciences and Mathematics at Auburn University. It is open year-round from sunrise to sunset and provides visitors a place for reflection and relaxation as they stroll along meandering paths. The scenery is reflective of unique habitats found in Alabama, such as rocky hillsides, stream bottoms, pond edges, salt-spray influenced sand dunes, pitcher plant bogs, and the Black Belt prairie.

In the spring, visitors will observe the blooms of more than 1,000 native Alabama azaleas, the largest collection in the state, as well as a multitude of native wildflowers. In addition to native plants, the arboretum is dedicated to implementing sustainable practices in the landscape. As a teaching resource for the public, the arboretum offers self-guided learning resources like the Stormwater Tour, which showcases tips for managing stormwater in a landscape. Informational brochures for this tour and other topics, such as locating native trees and shrubs in the facility, are available at the Arboretum Pavilion.

The arboretum also functions as an outdoor classroom for university classes and local schools. There is no charge for admission.

DOWNTOWN AUBURN

Downtown Auburn is the heart of our city, the center of activity and the gathering place for our community. Chic boutiques, upscale and casual dining, cafés, sweet shops, gameday hangouts and the best spots for every kind of Auburn gear are all conveniently located in downtown Auburn, next to the Auburn University campus.

Many events are held in downtown Auburn throughout the year, including Tiger victory celebrations, Halloween trick-or-treat, the SummerNight Downtown Art Walk and the annual Christmas parade. Find out more at www.downtownauburnonline.com.

Auburn University’s Housing and Residence Life offers accommodations in five housing neighborhoods comprising a total of 32 residence halls. Nearly 5,000 undergraduate students live in on-campus housing.

The Village has eight residence halls with super-suites housing four students. Members of Auburn’s social sororities live in Magnolia, Oak, and Willow Halls. Plainsman Hall residents are all female and the other four coed halls are home to freshmen or upperclassmen.

South Donahue is five floors of suite-style living. It is coed by floor. The Wellness Kitchen is across the street from South Donahue Hall and a convenience store is located on the first floor.

Cambridge Hall has five floors of double occupancy rooms. It is coed by suite.

Located in the center of campus, the Quad includes 10 of Auburn’s most historic residence halls. Rooms are configured as suites with two double-occupancy rooms connected by a bathroom; two Quad halls are all female.

The Hill has 12 halls and rooms are configured as suites with two double-occupancy rooms connected by a bathroom; two halls are all female.

HelmetFitting.com teaches parents and coaches how to be proactive when it comes to fitting and maintaining helmets. Helmet manufacturers use top technology to enhance athlete protection, but these methods are fruitless if they are not being implemented by the end users. Parents, coaches, trainers and other school athletic staff deserve the opportunity to learn how to use the equipment technology and guidelines the way helmet manufacturers intended.

Too often, parents and coaches go out and buy children the most expensive helmet rather than the right helmet. We want to empower parents and coaches with knowledge that will help them choose the helmet that fits best. Properly-fitted equipment gives athletes the confidence to play at their fullest potentials and to enjoy the game of football.

How we can help
HelmetFitting.com features Maxwell Award for Innovation and Safety winner Dana Marquez speaking directly to parents and coaches about how to select the correct helmets for their athletes by following manufacturers' fitting guidelines. Dana takes you step-by-step on how to purchase, fit and maintain your athlete's helmet.

Empowering parents and coaches is Dana's mission, and fostering a positive culture surrounding impact sports is his passion.

Get the video series
Getting the HelmetFitting.com instructional video series is easy. Complete the secure order form below to purchase this important video series created and narrated by Dana Marquez.

For $19.95, you receive training from an award-winning and certified equipment professional, followed by a quiz on the material covered and a certificate of completion. The video series will take you through the steps for correctly fitting helmets. Plus, Dana will cover fitting shoulder pads, jerseys, footwear, and accessories.

The series will cover the following athlete age groups:
- Youth
- Middle/High School
- Professional

It’s not our job to help solve financial problems. It’s our calling.

That’s just the way we do business.
Powering homes for more than 100 years.

Powering progress all along.

When Alabama Power Company was founded on December 4, 1906, it was the beginning of more than a mere electric utility company. It marked the beginning of our mission to help transform Alabama’s economy and vastly improve the quality of life for its citizens. Today, our continuing commitment to progress, innovation and economic development is one more way we’re partnering with the state to help elevate Alabama.

Trinity Christian School was established in 1978 as a private Christian school committed to providing a classical, biblical education.

AUBURN CITY SCHOOLS (ACS) currently consists of 11 campuses made up of four primary schools (K-2) that sister with four intermediate schools (3-5), one middle school (6-7), one junior high (8-9) and one high school (10-12).

ACS enrollment surpassed 8,500 for the first time in the school system’s history. As one of the fastest growing school systems in Alabama, ACS averaged 416 new students per year for the past five years (2011-2016).

In spring 2015, the citizens of Auburn voted to approve the allocation of city funds to build the new Auburn High School, located at 1701 E. Samford Avenue. Classes start in the 350,000 square-foot facility in August 2017 with a capacity for 2,200 students in grades 10-12, creating a shift in campuses at the secondary level.

Auburn students consistently score above state and national averages in all tested areas of ACT Aspire, ACT Plan, and The ACT (these assessments measure college and career readiness against national benchmarks for students beginning in grade three through grade 12).

On the SAT and the ACT, Auburn High School students consistently score above the state and national averages and are regularly in the top five in the state in these scores.

Auburn Junior High School is a Blue Ribbon School.

J.F. Drake Middle School will now house sixth grade only, the newly named East Samford School (formerly the junior high) will house seventh grade only and the new Auburn Junior High School (formerly Auburn High School at 405 S. Dean) will house eighth and ninth grades.

Celebrating diversity, ACS boasts more than 40 different languages spoken in the homes of students.

ACS was the first SMART Showcase District in the United States. All classrooms are equipped with SMART Boards and the student to computer ratio for the system is 2:1.

ACS has been named the “Best Educational Value in the Southeast” by the Wall Street Journal, ranked No. 4 “Best Public School System in Alabama” by Niche.com and landed in the “Top 100 School Systems in the US” by Parenting magazine.

Newsweek ranked Auburn High School as a top school in Alabama, and recent U.S. News & World Report rankings place Auburn High as No. 6 in the state.

Both Wrights Mill Road Elementary School and Auburn Early Education Center have been recognized as US Department of Education National Blue Ribbon Schools, and Auburn Early Education Center has also been named an Intel and Scholastic School of Distinction. Auburn Junior High School is a Blue Ribbon School.

With continued local support, ACS is able to fund additional teacher units, including art and music, in all eight elementary schools.

In March 2017, EAMC’s certificate of need request for a new cancer center was approved by the Alabama Health Planning and Development Agency. The cancer center, which will replace the one that opened inside EAMC in 1992, will be a stand-alone facility and will be located near The Pediatric Clinic in Opelika. Expected to take 18 months to construct, the new cancer center will cost around $40 million.

East Alabama Medical Center (EAMC) has a unique atmosphere and a level of success that ranks it among the best in the United States. Long considered one of the best places to work in Lee County (and even in the nation, according to Fortune magazine a few years back), EAMC employs close to 3,000 people—second only to Auburn University in this area. The hospital consistently receives awards of excellence in many clinical areas, and frequently ranks in the top 10 percent of hospitals when it comes to patient satisfaction.

The medical center opened in 1952 as an 81-bed hospital, but has gone through a number of expansions over the years and currently is licensed for 340 beds (314 acute care beds and 26 skilled nursing beds). The most recent expansion occurred in 2006, and doubled the south bed tower from four floors to eight floors. This expansion project also included the addition of the West Pavilion, which houses the hospital’s Intensive Care Unit, Cardiovascular Intensive Care Unit, 10 operating rooms and Cardiac Rehab.

More than 150,000 people annually are cared for at EAMC. The Emergency Department cared for more than 48,000 patients last year, and 2,079 babies were born in the hospital’s Women’s and Children’s Center—the first time EAMC has surpassed 2,000 in hospital history. Speaking of babies, EAMC was designated a “Baby-Friendly” hospital by Baby Friendly USA in 2015, making it only the second hospital in Alabama and the 241st overall in the US to pass this rigorous test. The EAMC organization (with facilities in Auburn, Opelika and Valley) also includes a cancer center, a nursing home, a 40,000-square-foot fitness center (HealthPlus Fitness Center—the state’s first certified medical fitness facility), and a wound treatment center. Also, EAMC operates the Auburn University Medical Clinic. Close to 200 physicians are on the active medical staff for EAMC and EAMC-Lanier (in Valley), practicing in 31 different specialties.

East Alabama Medical Center is devoted to being a good neighbor and providing quality health care to the residents of Lee and surrounding counties. EAMC has provided health screenings and health education benefits to the community at a cost of more than $1.5 million in the past three years. For the underserved in the community, the hospital wrote off more than $110 million in charity care and bad debt over the past three years.

High quality, compassionate health care

EAST ALABAMA MEDICAL CENTER (EAMC) is an acute-care regional referral center serving east Alabama and west Georgia. EAMC has 2,700 employees in Auburn-Opelika and another 400-plus at its EAMC-Lanier campus in nearby Valley. In keeping with EAMC’s vision to be a national leader in quality, cost and service, it was named a top performer in the Premier healthcare alliance’s QUEST: High Performing Hospitals® collaborative. In November 2014, EAMC purchased the latest da Vinci robotic model and is now able to perform heart surgery through a minimally-invasive procedure. In 2015, EAMC earned the distinction of becoming the second “Baby-Friendly” hospital in Alabama and is the 241st such designee in the United States.

A positive business environment, a viable workforce, a fantastic education system, and a high quality of life have all fueled the commercial and industrial boom seen in the past several years.

INDUSTRIAL GROWTH

Auburn’s industrial base is built around small- to mid-sized value-added technology-based manufacturing and research firms. Auburn has three technology parks and one industrial park where the main areas of focus include small engines and generators, wireless technologies, filtration systems, CNC machining, plastic injection molding, national defense, bio-technology, aviation, and automotive areas that include aluminum wheels, front and rear axles, driveshafts, hydraulics, plastic components and aluminum parts.

As part of the city’s commitment to industrial development, the Auburn Center for Developing Industries (ACDI) was designed to give the city’s small business entrepreneurs a nurturing environment during their early years or during a transition to the Auburn community. ACDI tenants share a wide range of office facilities and services, including automated office equipment, secretarial support services, maintenance, utilities and telecommunication equipment. One of the first three business incubators funded by the state of Alabama, ACDI has enjoyed great success and has expanded its facilities twice.

Also supporting the economy in Auburn and helping the city to prepare for the future is the Auburn Training Connection (ATC). The ATC, a joint partnership between the city of Auburn and community leaders from industry, education and government, complements the Auburn Economic Development Department and is dedicated to quality workforce development in our community. The ATC ensures that our growing industry base is supplied with a skilled workforce by partnering

While Auburn University anchors Auburn’s economy and provides stability, the Auburn Economic Development Department has worked tirelessly to ensure that Auburn continues to grow in all economic sectors.
with manufacturers to identify and meet workforce needs and assimilating Auburn High School students and citizens into high-tech manufacturing careers.

COMMERCIAL GROWTH

Driven by the continued population growth in East Alabama and expanding tourism and travel marketing, Auburn continues to experience steady commercial growth. In addition, the city of Auburn’s Commercial Development Incentive Program has brought numerous new and redeveloped commercial enterprises to our area. Significant redevelopment is occurring along the Opelika Road corridor as a result of the program.

Downtown Auburn, recently revitalized through a joint effort by the city of Auburn and Auburn University, continues to be an attractive location for retailers and restaurants. In the past year, five new businesses have opened: Charming Oaks, Entourage Clothing & Gifts, Dress Up, University Donut Company and Taco Mama.

Auburn also has new hotel activity with the opening of TownPlace Suites in late 2016 and the anticipated opening of Tru by Hilton on South College at West Pace.
AUBURN UNIVERSITY ECONOMIC IMPACT HIGHLIGHTS

Auburn had an overall $5.1 billion economic impact on the state economy in 2015 and created 23,600 jobs, in addition to direct employment, according to a recent self-study.

In 2016, the university unveiled its new $1 million supercomputer with teraflop computing power that will enhance enormous research projects across campus, from genomic sequence analysis to complex engineering tasks.

The Center for Industrialized Additive Manufacturing will explore ways for businesses to use additive manufacturing, more commonly known as 3D printing, to increase productivity and profits. Through a three-year, $1.5 million grant from the National Institute of Standards and Technology, the center will research means for smaller manufacturers to use additive manufacturing for reliable, high-volume production of metal parts.

In a single year, Auburn’s technical assistance programs help clients achieve nearly $20 million in increased productivity and investment capacity.

Auburn is the primary source of instruction and research for Alabama’s aerospace, automotive, microelectronics, biotech, and wireless technology industries.
The Auburn Research and Technology Foundation translates Auburn University research into new ventures, nurtures those ventures, and provides an entrepreneurial environment where those businesses—and yours—can prosper. We foster public-private partnerships that use university resources to advance economic development.

ARTF operates two environments for business success:

- Auburn Research Park is a 171-acre, mixed-use entrepreneurial research and business campus focusing on technology/knowledge-based businesses, research centers, and university research facilities.
- Auburn Business Incubator is designed to help launch, nurture, and accelerate the development of entrepreneurial companies by providing them with the expertise, networks, and services they need to succeed.

THIS IS AUBURN.

WWW.AUBURNRTF.COM  |  334.844.7480
For nearly a decade, Auburn Research Park has been a key contributor to the economy of our state and region. The 171-acre park was established by the state of Alabama, the city of Auburn and Auburn University in 2007. Adjacent to the university on South College Street, the park is a mixed-use entrepreneurial research and business campus focusing on technology/knowledge-based businesses, research centers, and university research facilities. It is home to the Auburn Research and Technology Foundation as well as a growing health sciences complex.

The Auburn Research and Technology Foundation operates the Research Park as part of a vibrant entrepreneurial ecosystem which includes the Auburn Business Incubator. The full-service incubator aids commercialization of university and community-derived technologies and services by providing a network of support services tailored to the needs of start-up and early stage companies. Services include cost-effective space and flexible leases, networking opportunities, shared business services and equipment, assistance in accessing investment and grant funds, and connectivity to technical and entrepreneurial expertise at Auburn University. For more information visit www.auburnbusinesincubator.com.

The Auburn University Regional Airport is a public use facility serving the local community that is owned and maintained by Auburn University. The airport offers excellent customer service, quality performance and efficient facilities.

The 26,000-square-foot terminal, which opened in 2010, includes a flight planning room, meeting space, board room, pilots’ lounge, offices and room to grow. The airport improvement project also includes the addition of several hangers to be made available for lease to private companies.

With this expansion and other improvements, the Auburn University Regional Airport is set to be an even more effective tool for economic development in this region.
The values of a fighter are honor, dignity, pride and sportsmanship. Trip embodies all of these, and more. As a Golden Gloves Heavyweight Boxing Champion, Trip learned that hard work, persistence and diligence pay off - in the ring and the courtroom.

Trip’s and his team at Walton Law Firm, always fight for the rights of victims who have been harmed by others. Trip’s motto has always been “We don’t start the fight - we finish it!”.
May 2016 marked the first Insider-Outsider Art Festival on Gay Street, hosted by the creative collection of businesses at the Southside Marketplace (near the intersection of Samford Avenue). The free festival, which will return each spring, featured a collection of Southern artists, including potters, welders, clothing designers, farmers, brewers and numerous musicians.

The mission of the Museum of East Alabama is to provide an environment for public benefit for the interpretation, exhibiting and housing of historical items and memorabilia.
PERFORMING ARTS CENTER

Auburn University broke ground on its new Performing Arts Center on April 1, 2017. The center will include a 1,200-seat performance hall that will accommodate world-class theater, opera, dance, and orchestra performances. The center, set to open in summer 2019, will be located across the street from the Jule Collins Smith Museum of Fine Art, creating a cultural gateway into the campus and community.

JULE COLLINS SMITH MUSEUM OF FINE ART, AUBURN UNIVERSITY
901 S. College Street  I  (334) 844-1484
www.jcsm.auburn.edu

As the anchor of Auburn University’s cultural gateway to campus, Jule Collins Smith Museum of Fine Art consists of six changing galleries, an auditorium, a café, gift shop, an English-inspired formal area and woodland landscape, outdoor sculpture, and landscaped walking paths. As a part of the university, the museum represents the commitment and dedication Auburn has to advancing the arts. Community memberships are available to support programs and exhibitions.

The building is a strikingly unique 40,000-square-foot structure made up of travertine stone imported from Tivoli, Italy. Inside the museum, the lobby opens onto a central rotunda with a breathtaking Amber Luster Chandelier by Dale Chihuly. The museum presents touring exhibitions organized by museums and cultural organizations. Permanent collection strengths include mid-20th-century American modernism; contemporary prints and photographs, the work of John James Audubon, Mexican modernism, works on paper pertaining to the South, Belleek Irish porcelain, contemporary ceramics and Southern outsider art. The museum also presents a juried outdoor sculpture exhibition, where sculptures selected from artists nationwide are exhibited around the lake. With more than 200 public programs for adults and children each year, participants will discover many types of arts experiences.

Admission is free. A five dollar donation is appreciated and accepted via an animatronic donation box that is a work of art itself! Plan your visit online at www.jcsm.auburn.edu.
The Hubert and Grace Harris Center opened in 2013 on the campus of the Frank Brown Recreation Center and the Jan Dempsey Community Arts Center. Named after the Harris family for their long-time wish that their neighboring property be used to expand city services, the Harris Center is the home for Auburn Parks and Recreation administrative offices and cemetery services. The center also has activity rooms for senior programs and events, community groups and board meetings, and space for receptions and lectures. The addition of the Harris Center allows for the property to be utilized in a more integrated fashion so that patrons can move throughout each building space and participate in a variety of activities without ever having to leave the campus.

TRANSPORTATION INFORMATION

Driver’s License:
New residents have 30 days after moving to obtain an Alabama driver’s license. If you have a valid, out-of-state license, you only have to take an eye test and show your Social Security card. If you do not have a license, you will also have to take a written exam and a road test. Tests are $5 and a four-year license costs $36.25. A driver’s license is valid for four years from the date of purchase.

Tags/Registration:
New residents must transfer their vehicle title and obtain an Alabama automobile license plate within 30 days of establishing residency. Tags may be purchased at the Revenue Commissioner’s office. You will need current tag registration, mileage reading, title or the name of lien holder or copy of the lease agreement, driver’s license and proof of insurance. Call (334) 737-3631 for more information.

TIGER TRANSIT

Tiger Transit provides safe and reliable service to and from Auburn University. It is a popular mode of transportation for Auburn students who have free, unlimited access with a valid student ID, but it is also available at no cost to university faculty and staff for on-campus routes. Tiger Transit does not operate during home football games or university holidays.

Tiger Transit offers a Night Transit service to off-campus locations from 6:15 p.m. - 10 p.m. (fall and spring semesters) and from 5:15 p.m. - 9 p.m. (summer semester). The Night Transit off-campus route is one-way and will not board passengers for return trips to campus or for other Tiger Transit destinations.

The Campus Security Shuttle is operated by the Department of Public Safety and Security and offers a safe ride from any on-campus location to any on-campus locations between 6 p.m. and 7 a.m., seven days a week while classes are in session, except during home football game evenings and official university holidays. To obtain service, call (334) 844-7400.

Whether you’ve moved here to get an education or for a new job, we welcome you to Auburn, our small town with the vast resources of a large research university set on a friendly, open campus.

Auburn University works on issues that matter to you. Our discoveries and outreach efforts build communities and create jobs by focusing on solutions in cyber security, additive manufacturing, food safety, transportation, health sciences, energy, the environment, and much more.

The city and the university consistently receive accolades that will make you proud of your new home. Forbes ranked the city as the 10th Best Small City for Jobs in the U.S., while Southern Living named Auburn No. 3 in their list of the South’s Best College Towns. Forbes and Money proclaimed Auburn the top university in the state. U.S. News and World Report ranked the university in the top 50 public institutions for each of the past 24 years, and ranked our online graduate programs in the top 10 of Best Online Programs. Additionally, Kiplinger’s Personal Finance named us a top 100 Best Value in Public Colleges.

As you become a member of the Auburn Family and settle into our community, you’ll soon be saying “This is MY Auburn.” War Eagle!
